OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING JANUARY 16, 1866

THE UNION STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Are requested to meet at SALEM ON THURSDAY THE 15TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1866 [illegible] County [illegible] [illegible] at [illegible] E. R. MOORES
Chairman Union State Central Committee
Salem Oreg., J[illegible] 1866

The Treasury Report.

Next in importance to the President's Message is the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury. This report will hardly call forth the loudest commendations from that class of financiers who would make us believe that an inflated irredeemable paper currency can easily be made to answer all the purposes of gold. The Secretary argues the question with a clearness and logic which are irresistible, and while he shows the unsoundness of the present system and the dangers that may be apprehended from it he points out the only way in which these difficulties can be cured. A speedy return to a specie basis may now be regarded as the fixed policy of the Government. The Secretary does not recommend the repeal of the legal tender act but advises Congress to make provision for a long loan, so that the notes may be gradually withdrawn from circulation. He thinks there need be no apprehension that the gradual reduction of the currency will affect real prosperity. On the contrary, the contraction of the currency is the only method by which prosperity can be assured. "The opinion that real prosperity is advanced by an increase of paper currency beyond what is absolutely necessary as a medium of exchange, is so totally fallacious that few sane men entertain it whose judgment is not clouded by the peculiar financial atmosphere which an inflation is apt to produce."

The financiers of the ideal school will not henceforth be the encomiasts of Secretary McCulloch.

ANOTHER 'FORGERY'—A few weeks ago the Oregon Statesman, with the sagacity for which that journal is distinguished, discovered what it exultingly declared was a gross and outrageous "forgery." We let the Statesman speak for itself:

"The Oregonian has published and commented upon what purports to be a speech of Mr. McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury, the principal point in which was to prove that the financial policy of the United States is in a very unsound and dangerous condition. When we read the pretended speech, we could not believe that it truly reported the Secretary, and we then even doubted its genuineness, never having heard of the Secretary making speeches. Since then, Judge Kelsay, of Corvallis, has written us a letter ably dissecting the matter, and comparing the pretended speech with the Secretary's letter to Thompson Campbell, of San Francisco, and showing fully that the published speech is 'bogus.' (We would publish Judge Kelsay's letter if we had room.). The San Francisco Flag has also investigated the matter, and has succeeded in tracing this bogus speech to an anonymous correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette. It is evidently a base forgery gotten up in Wall street to raise the price of gold."

Our turn has come now. We have discovered another "forgery" equally as gross as that trumpeted forth by the Statesman. We publish a report this morning "which purports" to have been written by Secretary McCulloch, "the principal point of which is to prove that the financial policy of the United States is in a very unsound and dangerous condition." The perfect coincidence between this document and the celebrated Fort Wayne speech, affords incontestible proof that the report of the Secretary of the Treasury is "a gross and outrageous forgery." "It was evidently gotten up in Wall street to raise the price of gold." We incline to the opinion too, that that part of the President's Message, which takes the same view of the finances as is set forth in this "bogus" report, is "not genuine." It surely must have been interpolated by the "gold gamblers of Wall street." Will the Statesman investigate this matter and inform its readers about it? Let us have the thing "ably dissected."

WHY THE MESSAGE WAS SO LONG COMING.—The President's Message reached San Francisco by the steamer which arrived on the 3d of January. It was telegraphed from there to the Sacramento Union and published in that paper on the 4th. The Union explains why the Message did not come by overland telegraph:

"This document would have been telegraphed to the Union across the continent at the time of its delivery to Congress had it not been for the exorbitant charge demanded by the telegraph. Heretofore the charge has never been higher than $800, and it has been as low as $500. But this year the price demanded was $1000, which we considered beyond all reason, especially as the message was not a long one, and therefore declined to avail ourselves of such costly telegraphic facilities."

The cost of telegraphing the Message from California to this place would have been about $100. Considering that we had already waited a full month for the document, we preferred to wait a few days longer rather than pay so much. The charge demanded for transmitting the Message overland to California was no greater proportionately than that asked for telegraphing it from California to Portland. We may add that this charge for sending the Message from California here would have been additional to the sum of $500 per month we have long paid for dispatches.

We observe that the restrictions under which some of the Southern Bishops who had refused to pray for the President, were placed by the military, are now removed. We are glad this is done. Prayers that are compelled will have but little efficacy. Besides, it is a matter of no consequence whatever, whether these rebellious Bishops pray for the President or not. During several years they prayed unceasingly for the Southern Confederacy, and invoked the wrathful punishments of Heaven upon the loyal people of the country, but it does not appear that these imprecations upon their enemies were of much avail. On the contrary, from the disastrous reverses which befel the rebel arms, we should infer that the prayers and maledictions of the clergy were an injury to their cause. In King Henry VI, we find a scene where the nobility of the court and realm were loudly lamenting the death of Henry V. One of the nobles remarked that the deceased monarch was indebted to the prayers of the church for his greatness. Another, less orthodox, exclaimed,

> The Church! where is it? Had not churchmen prayed
> His thread of life had not so soon decayed."

The rebel Bishops having prayed the Southern Confederacy to perdition in praying for it there is no reason why they should be required to intercede for our rulers and for the Government of the United States. There are few, we think who will grieve if omitted in their prayers.

Judge McBride of Idaho, and Judge Hill of Grant county arrived here yesterday from the Dalles. They left that place on Thursday last, coming as far as the Cascades by steamer, and the remainder of the way by land.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.—The Pacific Tribune says on Monday last, the 1st inst., Henry Bush, of Bush Prairie, shot himself and it is thought expired almost instantly. The ball entered the right side of his lower jaw, ranging upward tearing the left side of the head to pieces. It is supposed that he placed the muzzle of the gun under his chin and fired it by the use of his toe, his right shoe being off. Evidence was elicited by the coroner's jury which went to show that the deceased at the time of the commission of the deed, was laboring under delirium produced by a severe attack of brain fever.

Since the Democracy lost General Sherman they have but two generals left: general failure and general despondency.—S. F. Flag.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JANUARY 13.

Washington News.

NEW YORK, Jan 11.—The Herald's Washington special dispatch says that Dr. Bacon, in behalf of the Faculty of Yale College is reported to have sent a communication to Mr. Speaker Colfax requesting the House not to array itself against the reconstruction policy of the President.

The rumors of an impending cabinet reconstruction which have prevailed for a week past are believed to have more foundation in fact than usually pertains to such reports. The President is known to be anxiously awaiting the European mail to know whether Mr Adams proposes an immediate return from London. This taken in connection with other small straws is believed to indicate the course of the coming breeze.

The World's Washington special dispatches say that a bill has been drawn by a very distinguished lawyer of Washington, which will be offered in Congress at an early day for the reorganization of the Supreme Court of the United States so as to reduce the number of appeals and increase the number of circuits and circuit Judges.

Senator Wilson's bill for increasing the regular army makes its maximum 92 000 men.

WASHINGTON Jan 11. Acting Secretary of State William Hunter, in a communication to the President transmitted to the House in answer to a resolution of inquiry concerning the kidnapping of the child of an American lady in the City of Mexico, by the usurper of the Republic, the so called Emperor, says no official information has been received at this Department relative to the kidnapping referred to, and that there is no information upon that subject which is deemed advisable to make public at this time.

The Assassination Conspirators—General News.

NEW YORK, Jan 11.—The Herald's Fortress Monroe correspondent writes that Captain Alexander of the Empire City arrived there on the 3d from Key West. He had seen Dr Mudd, Spangler and O'Laughlin, the Lincoln assassination conspirators. They all occupy one room and are in good health. They do the most menial and degrading work about the prison. Dr Mudd has behaved with exemplary propriety since his failure to escape some time ago, and is evidently trying to reinstate himself in the good opinion of his custodians and his former easy and agreeable place in the prison hospital.

The locomotive of a freight train on the New Jersey Central Railroad exploded at Crandall Junction on Tuesday. The engineer, fireman and brakeman were instantly killed.

Last evening the Union League Club assembled at their hall in Union Square and passed appropriate resolutions expressing their sorrow at the loss sustained by them in the death of their late associate and first President, Robert C Minturn.

By order of Henry A. Wise, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, a large lot of old and miscellaneous cannon were disposed of at public auction at the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday. Only about 40 persons were present at the sale. These guns before delivery to the purchasers will be mutilated so as to be of no use as an arm of offence or defence, otherwise they would have brought large prices and met with a ready sale.

The names of the Adams' Express robbers arrested are Trustal, Lockwood and Clark. A spicy correspondence was offered in evidence on Mr Stephens promising not to trouble Mr Crane. He was permitted to depart but will be required to enter bonds for his future good conduct.

Congressional.

CHICAGO, Jan 8.—A Washington dispatch to the Chicago Tribune says: The resolution adopted in the House to day expressing the opinion that the troops should not be withdrawn from the Southern States until Congress had investigated their condition and decided on the future of those States as regards their restoration to the Union, developed nearly an unbroken front among the Republican majority. The resolution was adopted by 94 to 37. Messrs Raymond, Thomas, Davis, Hubbel of New York, Delano, of Ohio, Woodbridge, of Vermont, and Green Clay Smith, were the only Republicans who voted in the negative.

Gen. Steadman, late commander in Georgia is in Washington on a short furlough, and will proceed from here to his home in Ohio.

WASHINGTON, Jan 8.—The appointment of a sub-committee by the joint committee on reconstruction consisting of two members of the Senate and one of the House, to wait upon the President, is regarded as significant of the intention of the committee with reference to the admission of the Tennessee delegation.

When Jeff Davis and Reagan were captured, there was found upon the latter's person some $50,000 of bills of exchange on Rothschilds, drawn by Trenholm. These, together with some others, amounting to upwards of $100,000, were sent to our Consular Agent at London for collection. They have recently been returned by him to the Secretary of the Treasury with an indorsement on the back by the Rothschilds that there were no funds to meet them. It is alleged by persons who know, that there were plenty of funds when the bills were drawn, but by some means the money has been spirited away.

Raymond, of New York, introduced a bill for the appointment of a commission to purchase a site for, and erect a Post Office in the city of New York.

Fortifications Disappearing.

MEMPHIS, Jan 7.—The Bulletin says the Mississippi river is rapidly effacing the monuments of the war along its banks. Island No 10 has disappeared. The bight on which Fort Pillow stood is rapidly disappearing, and the great earthworks at Randolph are all gone.

Minnesota Affairs.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan 8.—The Legislature met in joint convention this afternoon to hear the farewell message of ex-Gov Miller and the inaugural of Gov Marshall. Gov Miller's message represents that the affairs of the State are in a prosperous condition. He recommends an amendment to the State Constitution, giving the right of suffrage to all who can read and write the English language. He reports two hundred and ten miles of railroad in operation and suggests further legislation to aid the roads. Gov Marshall's inaugural repeats the recommendation in relation to the suffrage, and favors the same principle for the national constitution. He says Minnesota will not consent to the readmission of the rebel States until they give full security for the future.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

ST. LOUIS Jan 8.—Joseph Woods was yesterday arrested and turned over to the United States authorities having in his possession $20 000 in counterfeit currency fifty cent notes. The counterfeits were doubtless printed from a plate stolen from the Treasury Department.

Indiana Politics.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan 8.—The Democratic State Convention is called to meet on March 15th.

Tennessee Loyalty.

NASHVILLE Jan 8.—The Legislature assembled to day. The political programme includes a new and more efficient franchise law to exclude rebel votes from the polls and the passage of a law allowing negro testimony in the courts. The latter measure was postponed until after the recess and was deferred, in order that members might consult their constituents. [illegible] have been favorable to the most decided legislation.

A meeting will be held to morrow night of the Union Central Committee who will send a memorial to the President describing affairs in Tennessee and earnestly entreating that the protection of the troops be not withdrawn. It is said they will even advise against the admission of the Tennessee Congressmen if that measure is to be followed by the withdrawal of the troops. Outrages by returned rebels and collisions with discharged loyal soldiers are of too frequent occurrence for speculation.

On Friday last Gov Brownlow en route from Knoxville to this city by railroad was wrecked eighty miles from Knoxville and had his foot and ankle bruised. The car in which the Governor was was separated from the train and thrown from the track and several other persons therein were injured.

On Friday evening last a party of gentlemen riding in a coach from Leavenworth, Kansas were attacked by a band of guerrillas. The party resisted the attack killing one of the guerrillas and driving off the balance.

It is stated in an evening paper that a deficit of from $80 000 to $150 000 exists in the accounts of the Auditor's Office in Brooklyn. An investigation will be made at once.

The Washington Republican says that Admiral Dupont kept his ships idle in Charleston Harbor and made $300 000 in prize money thereby. President Lincoln issued an imperative order to him to move his ships inside the bar and seal the harbor against blockade running. Dupont disobeyed and was relieved. Dahlgren succeeded him and moved his ships inside the bar. Blockade running was then completely destroyed so that Dahlgren's prize money only amounted to a little over $20 000. About six millions are yet to be paid which will probably swell the figures against the names of Lee, Porter and Dupont.

WASHINGTON Jan 7.—There is not a particle of foundation for the report that Chief Justice Chase asked for the pardon of young Ketchum.

The official of the Freedmen's Bureau who was recently sent to investigate matters pertaining to the freedmen's affairs in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, has just reported the result of his observations. He says that although much opposition is manifested toward the free labor system, the really intelligent men in the first two States express their determination to co-operate with the freedmen's bureau in its efforts to elevate the condition of the negroes and in restoring and preserving harmony between the two States. In Florida, however, it does not seem to exist, a number of whites having notified General Foster, by letter, that unless they were allowed to whip and shoot negroes whenever it suited their fancy, they would leave the State, and their request not being acceded to, a large number of planters are emigrating to Texas where they hope to enjoy unrestricted liberty.

There was received last week at the Treasury Department over a million and a half in legal tender notes, $297,000 in gold certificates, $22[illegible] 858 in fractional currency, and $48[illegible] in certificates of indebtedness.

The President yesterday signed a patent granting 45 500 acres of land to the Central Pacific Railroad.

The French here scout at the report telegraphed from New Orleans, that the Liberal army is about to be reinforced by a division of American veteran troops recruited from our army on the Rio Grande. The Mexican legation on the other hand, whether they credit it or not, will not say they don't believe it. The friends of Maximilian's Government pronounce the whole story as a ruse to keep up the sale of the Mexican loan, which is dragging rather heavily on the market. Gen R Clay Crawford who is reported to be advancing to the aid of the Mexican Liberals at the head of an American division of recruits in Texas, is a citizen of Tennessee, and was a year ago, dismissed from the service by a court martial for stealing money from a bank in Rogersville. He was appointed to West Point originally by Andrew Johnson, then a Congressman from Tennessee, but was dismissed before he had completed his course. He was one of Walker's fillibusters, and at the outbreak of the war was an inmate of a Virginia prison. Subsequently, he was made a captain in Tennessee, and procured a fraudulent appointment as Colonel of a negro regiment. It is not believed here that he can have raised a force for any service, Liberal or Imperial.

Private telegrams from New York report a good deal of excitement in the gold market on the 18th inst the price fluctuating between 119 and 151 closing weak. Sterling exchange (same date) was at 108 on the strength of this decline, in gold. Legal tenders are decidedly firmer sales having been made over the counter at 72½, at the board 71½ was offered with no sales.

Quotations are as follows: Savage $665, Belcher $125, Gould & Curry $830, Yellow Jacket $4[illegible]0, Chollar Potosi $116, Ophir $3[illegible]0, Hale & Norcross $400, Crown Point [illegible]75, Alpha, $160, Imperial, $110, Confidence, $21, Empire Mill & M. Patents for the Pacific Railroad—Message from the Governor.

To the Senate of the State of California—I have the honor to transmit, for your information copies of correspondence by telegraph as follows:

(Signed) F F LOW Gov.

SACRAMENTO Dec 31st 1865.—To Hon John Conness, Jas A McDougall, Wm Higby, John Bidwell and D C McRuer, Washington D. C. The Legislature having passed the following preamble and resolutions I am instructed to send you a copy by telegraph. Yours, F F LOW, Governor.

Appended were the resolutions. The following reply was received January 11th:

WASHINGTON Jan 8th 1866.—To Gov F F Low: Your dispatch has just been received. The patent has been issued to the Railroad Company. The grant reserves mineral lands to the Government. The patent conforms to the law and reserves mineral lands. Will write you [illegible]. (Signed) JOHN CONNESS.

ADVICE.—Never ridicule sacred things or what others may esteem as such however absurd they may appear to be. Never resent a supposed injury till you know the views and motives of the author. Never on any occasion retaliate. Always take the part of an absent person who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will permit. Never affect to be witty, jest so as to wound the feelings of another. Say as little of yourself and those who are near as possible. Aim at cheerfulness without levity. Never obtrude advice unasked. Never court the favor of the rich by flattering vanity. Speak with calmness and deliberation on all assertions especially in circumstances which tend to irritate. On all occasions have in prospect the end of life and future good.

The Nevada Gazette says that there is a prospect of a rush of miners from that place for Montana Territory, next Spring.

[illegible] NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—Secretary Welles recently told the editor of the Hartford Press that if Mr Johnson wasn't at home, or a private citizen he would favor negro suffrage in [illegible]. Senator Doolittle's account of the President's views is to the effect that while he holds to the idea that each Southern State should, without constitutional restriction upon colored suffrage, and that the Legislature should be empowered to extend, from time to time, the rights of suffrage to certain superior classes of the colored people, such as those who had performed military service, who had for a long time been heads of families, and supported them by their own industry, and had demonstrated clearly their intellectual fitness to exercise the right of suffrage [illegible] be wholly impolitic and dangerous [illegible] a precedent to the re-admission of the rebellious States.—Boston [illegible]

NOTES AND MIDDLE B[illegible].—Under date of January 12th, a writer who has been to South Boise and we are not feel there [illegible] that [illegible] in these columns on Saturday [illegible] went," but claims that it [illegible] just where it should have commenced. He writes as follows: [illegible] all these stamps the question naturally follows why do not more bricks and bullion come from there. In the first place we do not deal in bricks yet. In what you may do when we are demoralized like our Owyhee neighbors or when Yuba shows her feet that has decidedly a baser tendency than our South Boise District. Secondly there are as many reasons as there are mills. One mill will persist in working the same hole in the ground because it is its own. Another New York friends cut the strings of before it [illegible] subsequently it collapsed. Some of them did not get ready to work until winter and the custom mills [illegible] up more than enough to pay for the crushing [illegible] their cashiers always left suddenly. One or two came in this fall and took hold of the thing right, [illegible] works first rate among them Mr Wilson Wad[illegible], took the bull by the horns and brought him into camp. He bought a good mine then a good mill, and now they work together like a pair of Canuck [illegible], and roll out the bullion very much to his satisfaction, and the gratification of all of his friends, for he is a good fellow and we like to see him do well [illegible] don't have a cent. But we all have lots of fun [illegible] that is why we are traveling. As for the Yuba district, we have not had as much as an arastra there this season. We were not ready for mills and besides there [illegible] miles of undulating ground over which there [illegible] only a trail, which it took a good careful mule, or [illegible] a day and a half to pack a light load. The mill [illegible] thought they were doing enough for us to bring [illegible] mill, crush our rock, and pocket all it yielded without [illegible] building a road for us, but we "couldn't see it," [illegible] owing to the slope being very abrupt where we [illegible] located. When we wanted the wherewithal to get "more beans," we either pounded it out of the [illegible] with a hand mortar, or washed it out of the rocks [illegible] dame nature had done the crushing, which made [illegible] indifferent as to the exact period of the arrival of the mills. The consequence was, one mill, after [illegible] and [illegible] at [illegible] Bar a few times, finally [illegible] again, another scattered itself all along the trail [illegible] summit of the mountain, where it has concluded [illegible] the winter. That is why you do not get any [illegible] returns from our minds. We are not ready yet, [illegible] we in a hurry, for we know it is there, and will [illegible] when we go for it.

[illegible] THE STREETS.—A very sober citizen—we know [illegible] have been sober because he belongs to the [illegible]—might have been seen, about dark last evening, laying in the mud of Alder street, near the crossing [illegible]. Curse the streets! expostulated the unfortunate. Oh! no, my friend, retorted a fellow who lay [illegible] don't cuss 'em, as that can do no good and besides very wrong to swear, but an effectual damning [illegible] have a salutary effect. Damn the streets as much [illegible], but don't swear. We happened to overhear [illegible]. The first individual had attempted to [illegible] upon the pickets of a fence, but lost his footing [illegible] sought a soft place below. The last one had tried [illegible] plank, but it was too slippery, and taking to [illegible] he had bogged a hole deeper than [illegible]. These two gentlemen had been accustomed [illegible] on Washington street, but now they [illegible] of the privilege. The contractors on that [illegible] removed the walks on both sides of the street, [illegible] and it is unsafe to life and limb, [illegible] to the spirit, to attempt anything [illegible] along the thorns of the slough between [illegible] could possess the brain of an individual [illegible] to remove so many sections of [illegible] on a street in this city used so much as Washington [illegible] of mind, it is utterly impossible for [illegible]. Stark street is not fit to walk along, [illegible] Washington cannot be used—now, how [illegible] stated is for some one else [illegible].

[illegible] HIS BOARD.—For months John O. W. [illegible] loafed around in the city at the expense of [illegible], and when asked for pay has taken it [illegible] to inform the landlord, who was the recipient of his "patronage," that that was a matter quite [illegible] the subject. He seemed to feel as though [illegible] were created for the particular purpose of [illegible] all who might seem disposed to live upon [illegible] of remuneration, and if they were not [illegible] support their guests they better dispose of [illegible] to others who, from a greater [illegible] of the grand cash, would be willing to transact [illegible] in accordance with the dead-head [illegible]. Nicely has followed no other pursuit than the [illegible], and has not [illegible] a meal nor [illegible] since he came to the city. His means of support [illegible] not visible, and on complaint of [illegible] he was yesterday arraigned to plead to [illegible] vagrancy, before Justice Hoffman. Not [illegible] witnesses of his character and standing, he was committed to the city jail for ten [illegible]. He will "grub" at the expense of the city, [illegible] to have his board no doubt, even [illegible] a cell. For such fellows it would be a good [illegible] the City Council would ordain that they follow [illegible] and keep a clean plank or [illegible], the tax payers, to walk upon in a muddy [illegible].

[illegible].—The privates of the 14th Infantry [illegible] Aspinwall when en route to the Pacific [illegible] hangs about still," if we may judge by [illegible] from the [illegible] Register of last [illegible]. "The remains of a cow, which from appearances, had been appropriated by some mischievous [illegible], were seen a day or two since back of [illegible], and other cattle have been disposed of in [illegible]. We do not pretend to know who the [illegible] are, but deem it our duty to put the owners [illegible] on their guard. Some soldiers told Mr. [illegible] of this place, that they could not get [illegible] eat, and if the people didn't want their [illegible] they must keep them away from about the [illegible]. Now this is a very serious class of offences, [illegible] not say that the soldiers are guilty, but their [illegible] to Mr. Curtin look very much like it. We [illegible] pretty well understood that the policy of the [illegible] is liberal toward the soldiers, and that their [illegible] ample. If the soldiers have enough to eat, [illegible] not to talk thus, nor resort to the use of [illegible] to obtain food; and if they have not [illegible] have the matter in charge should see that their [illegible] supplied."

[illegible] LECTURE.—Dr. W. H. Watkins will, this [illegible] deliver the first lecture of the course, before the [illegible] and Female Seminary. Subject—[illegible] Saxon Race—its Freedom and its Power." [illegible] delivered this lecture recently at Salem, before the [illegible] Society of the Willamette University, and [illegible] says: It was handled in a masterly manner [illegible] a style of rhetorical beauty. The Doctor discussed [illegible] original principles of free government—based [illegible] of the people—as flowing from the old Saxon [illegible] traced the progress and strength of the principle [illegible] extension and development of the English [illegible] governments. The Statesman says, these [illegible] [illegible] an intellectual feast.

[illegible] of women who [illegible] in former days, those endearing graces [illegible] the author to attribute a beautiful woman [illegible] of the most attractive objects in all nature's works, [illegible] before his honor, Justice Hoffman, yesterday [illegible] drunken and disgraceful conduct in [illegible] city. It is always a matter of regret to [illegible] to chronicle abuses of society from those [illegible] to be the brightest ornaments, yet such is the [illegible] often in crowded communities, women lost to [illegible] and wanting in regard for the respect of others, may be seen pleading in criminal courts. The plead [illegible] day were, guilty as accused, and the frail ones [illegible] and costs each, and being reprimanded by the [illegible] discharged.

MR. COLFAX.—Our Washington letter to-day, speaking of Colfax, says he may prove an exception to the general [illegible] of politicians in America, and afford to wait for [illegible] honors the people may confer upon him. The [illegible] of Mr. Colfax, known to his most intimate friends, [illegible] that he has never yet sought place, but place has [illegible] him. It is possible he may go to the Senate from [illegible] or be put on the national ticket as Vice President and finally as President; but he will never be found [illegible] those honors according to "general rule."

[illegible].—We happened to spy in the city, yesterday, [illegible] townsman, Capt. Wm Moulthrop, who has [illegible] of late years more a resident of Idaho than Oregon. His looks resemble those of a person in good condition [illegible] and we are glad to learn that his business relations [illegible] like situation. He has been, the past season, [illegible] lumber to the people of South Boise, from an [illegible] operation in that region.

[illegible] DAYS.—Judge W. Lair Hill arrived in the [illegible] day, by the steamer Fannie Troupe, having [illegible] Dalles on Thursday last, and arrived at the Cascades [illegible] that day by the steamer Idaho. From the Cascades [illegible] company with others, Judge Hill reached [illegible] by "foot and walker's line," a more ancient [illegible] method of travelling at that time on the [illegible] of the river, than in the stream on a boat. Judge [illegible] Canyon City in the John Day region.

[illegible] OF MRS. HABERSOHN.—The funeral of Mrs. L. [illegible], who died so suddenly at her residence in [illegible] Thursday night of last week, was largely at[tended] [illegible] at the Presbyterian church yesterday, by her [illegible] and sisters in the order of Good Templars. The [illegible] we understand, will be taken to Lane county for [illegible].

[illegible]—Charles Barrett, of the magazine and periodical [illegible], on Front street near Barman Brothers, left [illegible] last evening the biggest roll of "States [illegible]" that has come to us for long days. We cannot [illegible] cite them, but all who want late papers and [illegible] will find them by calling early this morning.

[illegible].—We observed at the police office, [illegible] a sign-board, arrested by one of the officers, [illegible] the following inscription: "Five hundred [illegible] reward. To the person or persons who will bring [illegible] to the city.

[illegible] The following motto of a green grocer in this [illegible] is used to attract notice: "Live and let [illegible]" but perhaps he does not intend it shall apply to [illegible].

[illegible].—Wells, Fargo & Co's express will leave [illegible] the upper Columbia, by the steamer Cascade [illegible].

[illegible] Prison and Castle Thunder, so well [illegible] in the history of the war, will soon be [illegible] into storehouses again. Castle Thunder [illegible] evacuated, and what few prisoners [illegible] within its walls will be transferred to [illegible], which now occupies but one fourth [illegible] known by that name. The other [illegible] already converted into storehouses [illegible] with produce of all descriptions.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10, 1865.

The organization of the House of Representatives is the most important event in the political world, since my last letter. Many nervous people were inclined to borrow trouble over it, but there never has been a time since the United States Congress met in Washington, when the House was organized so promptly, and when the dominant party was such a unit on all important subjects. The question at once backed down before a united front, though James Brooks of New York delayed the election of Speaker for half an hour, that he might get off a speech. He is somewhat popular in the House, for he is invariably good natured. But his vanity is uncontrollable and he can never forgo an opportunity to put his name into the newspapers. It was thought for a little while that he was going to lead off in an attempt at "filibustering," but he soon subsided.

When the election of Speaker began, and Mr. Brook's name was announced, there were peals of laughter from all parts of the House. The opposition consists of about 35 men, and their candidate for Speaker is not even sure of his own seat. It is contested by Mr. Dodge, of New York and those persons who know something of the circumstances assert that Mr Dodge has a fair chance of winning the seat.

Mr Colfax's speech was a little more decided in its radicalism than the one he delivered from the National Hotel before his election. It is in unison with the current of sentiment in Congress and throughout the North and West.

I noticed all the California and Oregon members in their places when the roll was called, also the Delegate from Washington Territory. The Senators from California and Oregon were also in their places in the Senate. Poor McDougall was drunk as usual, and excited general attention. It is a consolation to know that his term is nearly expired. He has disgraced California long enough in the Senate of the United States. Oregon is well represented in the Senate—I mean that her Senators are worthy as gentlemen to mingle with the best upon that floor, and such is the opinion of good men and true from all parts of the country.

I noticed that Mr Colfax's mother and sister were in the gallery looking down upon the election of the son and brother for the second time, to this high office. They are sweet and home-like faces and always welcome in the best homes of Washington. The Colfaxes are to receive their friends this winter as usual on Four and a half street, a little north of the Avenue. Senator Wade and wife live there with them, and in a neat, modest, yet comfortable way they will pass the winter. I understand that Mr Colfax intends that this shall end his career as a member of Congress. Twice elected speaker, he cannot hope for any higher honors at the hands of the House. Probably at some future day, he may come to the Senate from Indiana but I doubt it. If he lives a few years he may be put on the National ticket as Vice-President and finally as President. He is a young man and can afford to wait. Time will do his work for him if he can be patient, but the American politician cannot wait. This is generally true of him. Mr Colfax may prove an exception to the general rule.

One word further respecting the organization. The Southern claimants who are in Washington (there are but few here) are quite despondent and are soon to return home in despair. The loyal Tennessee men remain in hopes of being admitted ere long, but the "rebels" are going home fully of the opinion that the South must take a different course, and it is my opinion that henceforth loyalty will become more common at the South and treason will not be everywhere honored as it has been. The seating of the members of the House is always an interesting occasion, and it was especially so this year. Old Thad. Steven's name was the first pulled out of the box, and, of course, he had the first choice of a seat. He took his old place, and some very strong men have gathered close around him. In a side circle there are half a dozen strong men. I may call them the leaders of the House. They are Stevens, Morril, of Vermont, Schenck and Garfield, of Ohio, Washburne, of Illinois, Raymond, of New York, and one or two more. Bowles, of Massachusetts, is but a little way off, and Dawes, from the same State, occupies a seat a little to the right of them. Some very good members here have poor seats, and some rather poor members have excellent seats; but this is always the evil of choosing seats by lot. Many of the members got their old places on the floor, and it is surprising how easily a man becomes attached to a locality on the floor of the House. Although it may be in some respects inferior, after he has occupied it for a year or two, he acquires an attachment to it. Some very well known republicans, who could not obtain seats on the Republican side of the House, took seats on the opposite side. There are but 35 opposition members, and they cannot fill half the seats on their side of the House, consequently some of the Republicans sit there, though the companionship is not exactly pleasant. Among the Republicans there are Hooper, of Massachusetts, and Bingham, of Ohio.

The reading of the Message on Tuesday, was another interesting scene. The moment that the Clerk began to read the MSS., Murry, the doorkeeper, placed a neatly printed copy of the document in the hands of each member, so that while the clerk read, each member can, with his eye keep ahead of him. Long before the clerk had finished the members had folded their pamphlet and were making up their minds as to its contents. Upon the whole I believe it meets with a kind reception. Its arguments do not suit all—of course. The argument upon equal suffrage will not meet with the approval of Mr. Sumner or Mr. Thad Stevens, but a majority of the Republican members of both Houses will agree with him on that point. They find very little to disagree with on the question of reconstruction as it is presented in the message. In fact the President has very little to say upon the subject. The hints given to England and France are exceedingly significant and will be sufficient to answer the purpose. The message does not mean foreign war but it says very clearly that Louis Napoleon must not attempt to force Imperialism upon Mexico any longer. This is the way prominent members of Congress interpret the paragraph upon Republicanism on this continent. We shall have no war for the present—probably never upon this subject—but France must get out of Mexico. The Government will give the French time to retire gracefully, but after he has had time if he attempts to bolster up Maximilian—the worse for Maximilian. There is no doubt whatever that Mr Seward "inspired" the paragraphs of the message having reference to our foreign policy and experts say that they can trace his hand in other parts of the document. His influence over the mind of the President is almost unbounded, and this is why it has all along seemed impossible that we shall have a foreign war. When Mr. Seward is ready for a war with France it will not be delayed for a very long time. So long as he is opposed to war it will be hard for Congress and the people—that is public sentiment—to drive him into it.

I notice some interesting items in the estimates for the next fiscal year just sent in to the House by Secretary McCulloch. It contains estimates of additional appropriations required for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1865, as well as of the year ending June 30th, 1867.

Two items stand as follows:

Indian service in Oregon and Washington Territory	$35,000
Ditto	30,000

The first item is for general incidental expenses, but the second is for the expense of removing the Indians and their subsistence. The Indian service in Utah foots up the sum of $25,000; in Nevada a similar sum. There is an estimate of near ly $300,000 for the mint in California, and $31,000 for supplies of lights on the Pacific coast. These are scattering items but they indicate that the interests of the Pacific coast are not overlooked.

Mr Higby, of California, intends that there shall be a standing committee on mines and mining in the House, and I presume he will succeed in his purpose. He tried the very first day of the session to get in a resolution establishing such a committee, but it was not possible. He can accomplish his object by obtaining the consent of the select committee to raise the rules. Such a committee is needed, and I doubt if any objection will be made. Mr Higby is quite likely to be chairman of the committee, and as he has shown a great deal of energy in defending the interests of the miners as well as a thorough knowledge of the subject, it would be proper to assign to him the chairmanship of such a committee.

The position of the President on the question of admitting the Southern claimants is gradually becoming known. He fears their early admission. There can no longer be a doubt on this point, though he is inclined to be very mild in his advocacy of his opinion. He offends no one in his interviews with the Republican Senators and Representatives. In this he is remarkably shrewd. His message is of the same character. Count Gurowski, the Russian, calls it "insidious"—that is his word for "diplomatic," I suppose. There is no doubt that the President is a good deal of a diplomatist.

You will notice that Mr Williams of Oregon has been placed on the Finance Committee of the Senate. This is a great honor. In fact in both houses it is considered equivalent to a chairmanship of any other committee. To be on the Ways and Means committee in the House or the Finance committee in the senate is equal to a place at the head of the less important committees.

The Chronicle of this city, which may be called the organ of the Administration (so far as it has any organ) was out yesterday in an article favoring the immediate admission of the Tennessee delegation. It is understood that it meets with the President's approval, and not only that but that he suggested the article. Whatever Congress may do with the other delegations, he is extremely anxious that Tennessee shall soon be admitted to representation, and I make the prediction that it will be done within the next two months. A large number of Republican members called on the President on Saturday last and they were one and all very much pleased with him and his conversation. Some of the shrewd ones, however, see plainly that the President desires to have the Tennessee delegation let in at once—and the others soon after. They will come in during this session, at least. That is, unless Congress breaks down and losing from its resolution, which it is not likely to do. The Senate, however, is not so radical as the House on this point, and it may give way to the President's wishes at this present session.

ONCE A WEEK.

FOR THROAT DISEASES AND AFFECTIONS OF THE CHEST, "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, are of great value. In Coughs, Irritation of the Throat caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs, in speaking in public, or singing, they produce the most beneficial results. The Troches have proved their efficacy.

"TAKE THE GOOD THE GODS PROVIDE THEE," chief among which, as can be testified by thousands, is "Newell's Pulmonary Syrup," a sworn foe to coughs, colds, asthma, croup, whooping cough and consumption. Take it freely. Keep it always by you and prolong your lives and those of others.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM, SKIN DISEASE, Diseases of the Urinary Organs, and indeed of Chronic Disease generally, seem not curable by ordinary medical treatment, however skillful. For this reason the undersigned has made arrangements for the treatment of this class of diseases, by which the patient may have the benefit of Dr. Langston Parker's method of treatment by fumigations: the use of many of the mineral and saline waters; baths in sea water; general and local baths of water, heated air and simple and medicated vapor, in addition to such other medical or surgical treatment as may be indicated.

Report of the Secretary of the Treasury

A brief synopsis of the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury giving a general statement of the condition of that Department, has already been telegraphed us and published. The whole report is quite long, occupying about ten columns of the New York Herald. We give such portions of it as are of more general interest, and such as explain the financial policy of the Government.

The Secretary takes very strong ground against the continued issues of legal tender notes. He says the acts authorizing their issue were war measures, and while the repeal of those provisions which made the United States notes lawful money is not now recommended, the Secretary is of the opinion that they ought not to remain in force one day longer than shall be necessary to enable the people to prepare for a return to the constitutional currency. He observes that it could not have been the intention of Congress, by those acts to introduce a standard of value, in times of peace lower than the coin standard, much less to perpetuate the discredit which must attach to a great nation which dishonors its own obligations by unnecessarily keeping in circulation an irredeemable paper currency.

GREENBACKS TO BE WITHDRAWN.

The reasons which are sometimes urged in favor of United States notes as a permanent currency are the saving of interest and their perfect safety and uniform value.

The objections to such a policy are, that the paper circulation of the country should be flexible, increasing and decreasing according to the requirements of legitimate business, while, if furnished by the Government, it would be likely to be governed by the necessities of the Treasury or the interests of parties, rather than the demands of commerce and trade. Besides a permanent government currency would be greatly in the way of public economy and would give to the party in possession of the government a power which there might be strong temptations to use for other purposes than the public good—keeping the question of the currency constantly before the people as a political question, than which few things would be more injurious to business.

But the great and insuperable objection as already stated, to the direct issue of notes by the Government as a policy, is that the Government of the United States is one of limited and defined powers, and that the authority to issue notes as money is neither expressly given to Congress by the Constitution, nor fairly to be inferred except as a measure of necessity in a great national exigency. No consideration of a mere pecuniary character should induce an exercise by Congress of powers not clearly contemplated by the instrument upon which our political fabric was established.

While, therefore, the Secretary is of the opinion that the immediate repeal of the legal tender provisions of the acts referred to would be unwise, as being likely to affect injuriously the legitimate business of the country, upon the prosperity of which depend the welfare of the people and the revenues which are necessary for the maintenance of the national credit, and unjust to the holders of the notes, he is of the opinion that only these provisions but the acts also, should be regarded only as temporary, and that the work of retiring the notes which have been issued under them, should be commenced without delay, and carefully and persistently continued until all are retired.

In speaking of the legal tender note, reference has only been made to those which authorized the issue of United States notes. The interest-bearing notes, which are a legal tender for their face value, were intended to be a security rather than a circulating medium, and it would be neither injurious to the public nor an act of bad faith to the holders, for Congress to declare that after their maturity, they shall cease to be a legal tender, while such a declaration would aid the Government in its efforts to retire them, and it is therefore recommended.

CONTRACTION NECESSARY.

The rapidity with which the Government notes can be withdrawn will depend upon the ability of the Secretary to dispose of the securities. The influences of funding upon the money market will sufficiently prevent their too rapid withdrawal. The Secretary, however, believes that a decided movement towards a contraction of the currency is not only a public necessity, but that it will speedily dissipate the apprehension which very generally exists, that the effect of such a policy must necessarily be to make money scarce and to diminish the prosperity of the country.

It is a well-established fact which has not escaped the attention of all intelligent observers, that the demand for money increases (by reason of an advance of prices) with the supply, and that the demand is not unfrequently most pressing when the volume of currency is the largest and inflation has reached the culminating point. Money being an unprofitable article to hold, very little is withdrawn from active use, and in proportion to its increase prices advance; upon the other hand, a reduction of it reduces prices, and as prices are reduced the demand for it falls off, so that, paradoxical as it may seem, a diminution of the currency may in fact increase the supply of it.

Nor need there be any apprehension that a reduction of the currency—unless it be a violent one—will injuriously affect real prosperity. Labor is the great source of national wealth, and industry invariably declines by an inflated currency. The value of money depends upon the manner in which it is used. If it stimulates productive industry it is a benefit, and on the other hand, it diminishes industry, to the extent only to which it does this is it a benefit. If, on extent to which it diminishes it, it is an evil. Even in the form of the precious metals, it may not prove to be wealth to a nation. The idea that a country is necessarily rich in proportion to the amount of gold or silver which it possesses is common [illegible] but an erroneous one, [illegible] prosperity [illegible] money [illegible] medium for exchange [illegible] fall [illegible] that few sane men entertain [illegible] judgment is not clouded by the peculiar financial atmosphere which an inflation is so apt to produce.

EVIL RESULTS OF INFLATION [illegible]

[illegible] country, but it can [illegible] if long continued, to be a calamity to any [illegible]. Gold and silver are the only proper measures of value.

The expansion has now reached such a point as to be absolutely oppressive to a large portion of the people, while at the same time it is diminishing labor, and is becoming subversive of good morals.

There is no fact more manifest than that the plethora of paper money is not only undermining the morals of the people by encouraging waste and extravagance, but is striking at the root of our material prosperity by diminishing labor. The evil is not at present beyond the control of legislation, but it is daily increasing, and, if not speedily checked, will, at no distant day, culminate in wide spread disaster. The remedy, and the only remedy within the control of Congress, is, in the opinion of the Secretary, to be found in the reduction of the currency.

PROGRESS OF INFLATION.

The paper circulation of the United States on the 31st of October last was substantially as follows:

1. United States notes and fractional currency ...	$454,218,038 20
2. Notes of the national banks ...	185,000,000 00
3. Notes of the State Banks, including outstanding issues of State Banks converted into National banks	65,000,000 00
Total ...	$704,218,038 20

The amount of notes furnished to the national banks up to and including the 31st of October was a little over $250,000,000 but it is estimated that $20,000,000 of these had not then been put in circulation.

In addition to the United States notes there were also outstanding $32,536,900 five per cent Treasury notes and $173,012,140 compound interest notes, of which it would, doubtless, be safe to estimate that $30,000,000 were in circulation as currency.

From this statement it appears that, without including 7 30 notes, many of the small denominations of which were in circulation as money, and all of which tend in some measure to swell the inflation, the paper money of the country amounted, on the 31st of October, to the sum of $751 218,038 20 which has been daily increased by the notes since furnished to the national banks and is likely to be still further increased by those to which they are entitled, until the amount authorized by law ($300,000,000) shall have been reached subject to such reduction as may be made by the withdrawal of the notes of the State banks.

The following is a statement of the bank note circulation of the country at the various periods of highest and lowest issues prior to the war:

Jan., 1830 ..	$61,324,000	Jan., 18[illegible]	$10[illegible] 951
" 1835	103,692,495	" 1857	214,778,822
" 1836 ..	140,301,038	" 1858	155,208,344
" 1837 ..	149,185,890	" 1860	207,102,000
" 1843	58,564,000

It will be noticed by this statement that the bank note circulation of the United States increased from $61,324,000 to $149,185,890 between the 1st of January, 1830, and the 1st of January, 1837, in which latter year the great financial collapse took place; fell from $149,185,890 in 1837 to $58,564,000 in 1843, and rose to $214,778,822 on the 1st of January, 1857, in which year the next severe crisis occurred, falling during that year to $155,208,344, and rising to $207,102,000 on the 1st of January, 1860.

The following is a statement of bank deposits and loans in the same years:

YEARS	DEPOSITS	LOANS
January 1, 1830	$55,560,000	$200,451,000
1835	83,081,000	365,163,000
1836	112,100,000	457,506,000
1837	127,397,000	525,115,000
1843	56,168,000	254,544,000
18[illegible]	212,705,000	6[illegible]4,184,000
18[illegible]	230,351,000	684,456,000
18[illegible]	185,932,000	583,165,000
1860	253,802,000	691,945,000

On the 30th of September the date of their last quarterly reports the deposits and loans of the national banks (the Secretary has no reliable returns of these items from the few remaining State banks) were as follows

Deposits, individual and Gov't ... $544,150,191
Loans, ... $485,814,020
To which should be added—
Investments in United States bonds and other U. S. securities ... 427,731,600 ... $913,545,620

THE DANGER BEFORE US.

These figures are a history within themselves exhibiting not only the past and present condition of the country, in matters of exceeding interest, but indicating unerringly the dangerous direction in which the financial current is sweeping.

On the 1st of January of the memorable year 1837 the bank note circulation of the United States was $149,185,890, the deposits were $127,397,000, the loans $525,115,000. In January 1857 the year of the next great crisis, the circulation was $214,778,822, the deposits were $230,351,000, the loans $684,456,000. There are no statistics to exhibit the amount of specie actually in circulation in those periods, but it would be a liberal estimate to put it at $80,000,000 for 1837 and 50,000,000 for 1857.

There were years of great inflation the effects of which have been already referred to—the revulsion of 1837 not only producing great immediate embarrassment, but a prostration which continued until 1843, at the commencement of which year the bank note circulation amounted only to $58,564,000, deposits to $56,168,000, loans $254,544,000—flour having declined in New York from $10 25 per barrel on the 1st of January, 1837, to $4 89 on the 1st of January 1843, and other articles in about the same proportion.

The reaction in 1857 was severe, but for the reason before stated, less disastrous and protracted.

On the 30th day of September last, the deposits of the National Banks alone, amounted to $544,150,194, their loans—estimating their national securities as loans to the Government—to $913,945,620, both of which items must have been increased during the month of October; while on the 31st of that month the circulation, bank and national, had reached the startling amount of upwards of $700,000,000. Nothing beyond this statement is required to exhibit the present inflation or to explain the causes of the current and advancing prices. If disaster followed the expansions of 1837 and 1857, what must be the consequences of the present expansion unless speedily checked and reduced!

It is undoubtedly true that trade is carried on much more largely for cash than was ever the case previous to 1861, and that there is much greater proper demand for money than there would be if sales were made, as heretofore, on credit. It is also true that there is a larger demand than formerly for money on the part of manufacturers for the payment of operatives. But, making the most liberal allowances for the increased wholesome demand arising from these causes, and from the advance of the country in business and population it is apparent from the foregoing statements, if the advance in prices did not establish the fact, that the circulating medium of the country is altogether [illegible].

OBJECTIONS TO CONTRACTION MET.

Before concluding his remarks upon this subject, it may be proper for the Secretary, even at the expense of repetition, to notice briefly some of the plausible objections to a reduction of the currency.

First. That by reducing prices it would operate injuriously, if not disastrously, upon trade, and be quite likely to precipitate a financial crisis.

To this it may be replied, that prices of articles of indispensable necessity are already so high as to be severely oppressive to consumers, especially to persons of fixed and moderate incomes and to the poorer classes. Not only do the interests, but the absolute necessities of the masses require that the prices of articles needed for their use should decline.

Nor is there any reason to apprehend, by any policy that Congress may adopt, so rapid a reduction of prices as to produce very serious embarrassment to trade. The government currency can only to any considerable extent, be withdrawn by the sale of bonds, and the demand for bonds will be so affected by the state of the market that a rapid contraction will be difficult, if not impossible, even if it were desirable. There is more danger to be apprehended from the inability of the government to reduce its circulation rapidly enough, than from a too rapid reduction of it. It is, in part, to prevent a financial crisis that is certain to come without it, that the Secretary recommends contraction. Prices are daily advancing.

The longer the contraction is deferred, the greater must the fall eventually be and the more serious will be its consequences. It is not expected that a return to specie payments will bring prices back to the standard of former years. The great increase of the precious metals and the high taxes will prevent this, but this consideration makes it the more important that all improper and unnecessary influences in this direction should be removed.

Again it is urged that a contraction of the currency would reduce the public revenue.

It is possible that this might be the immediate effect, but it would be temporary only. The public revenues depend upon the development of our national resources, upon our surplus productions, in other words, upon labor. The revenues derived from transactions based upon a false standard of value, or from interests that can only flourish in speculative times, are not those upon which reliance can be placed for maintaining the public credit. What a healthy and reliable business requires is a stable basis. This it cannot have as long as the country is inflicted with an inconvertible currency, the value of which, as well as the value of the vast property which is measured by it, is fluctuating and unreliable; and may be in no small degree controlled by speculative combinations.

CONTRACTION WOULD NOT ENDANGER PUBLIC CREDIT.

It is also urged that the proposed policy would endanger the public credit, by preventing funding, and that it would compel the Government and the people, who are in debt, to pay in a dearer currency than that in which their debts were contracted.

The Secretary is unable to perceive any substantial grounds for this objection. He cannot understand how the process of funding is likely to be aided by the continuance of prices on their present high level, or how the credit of the Government is to be restored by the perpetuation of an irredeemable currency, especially as that currency consists largely of its own notes. While it is hoped that early provision will be made for the commencement of the reduction of the National debt, an early payment of it is not anticipated. Nor is it understood that those who are apprehensive of the effects of contraction, entertain the opinion that the present condition of things should be continued until any considerable portion of this debt shall be paid.

So far as individual indebtedness is regarded, it may be remarked that the people of the United States, if not as free from debt as they were six months ago, are much less in debt than they have been in previous years, and altogether less than they will be when the inevitable day of payment comes round, if the volume of paper money is not curtailed. A financial policy which would prevent the creation of debts and stimulate the payment of those already existing, so far from being injurious, would be in the highest degree beneficial.

CONTRACTION WOULD NOT EMBARRASS NATIONAL BANKS.

It is further urged that a reduction of the government notes would embarrass the national banks if it did not force many of them into liquidation.

To which it may be said, that it is better that the banks should be embarrassed now than bankrupted hereafter. Their business and their customers are now under their control. What will be their condition in these respects if the expansion continues and swells a year or two longer it is not difficult to predict. While there has been no unhealthy expansion of credits in the United States for which the banks have not been largely responsible there has been none by which they have not been ultimately the losers. Unless their sentiments are misunderstood by the Secretary the conservative bankers of the country are quite unanimously in favor of a curtailment of the currency, with a view of an early return to specie payments.

Again. It is said that the excessive bank deposits have as much influence in creating and sustaining high prices as a superabundant currency. This is unquestionably true, but it is also true that excessive deposits are the effect of excessive currency, and that whenever the currency is reduced there will be at least a corresponding, if not a greater reduction of deposits.

WOULD CONTRACTION REDUCE EXPORTS AND INCREASE IMPORTS?

The last objection which will be noticed to the measure recommended is that it would, by reducing the rate of foreign exchange reduce exports and increase imports.

It is doubtless true that a high rate of exchange did for a time increase the exportations of our productions and diminish the importations of foreign articles, but this advantage was much more than counterbalanced by the largely increased expenses of the government and of the people, resulting from the very cause that produced the high rate of exchange. Besides, this apparent advantage no longer exists. The balance of trade is against the United States notwithstanding the continued high rate of foreign exchange, [illegible] exports and [illegible] imports [illegible] a balance in favor of Europe that is likely to be the greatest obstacle in the way of an early resumption of specie payments. [illegible] that while the export of our productions was stimulated by the high rate of exchange, the very high rate of exchange enabled Europe to purchase them at exceedingly low prices.

Unless an unusual demand for our products is created in Europe by extraordinary causes it will be ascertained by reference to the proper tables that our imports increase and our exports diminish, under the influence of a redundant currency. But reference to figures is hardly necessary to substantiate this proposition. It is substantiated by the statement of it. A country in which high prices prevail is an inviting one for sellers, but an uninviting one for purchasers. Such a country is unfortunately the United States at the present time. In order, however, that there may be no misapprehension on this point, the attention of Congress is respectfully called to a clear and interesting paper from Dr. Elder, statistician of the department, accompanying this report.

Every consideration therefore, that has been brought to the mind of the Secretary confirms the correctness of the views he has presented. If the business of the country rested on a stable basis, or if credits could be kept from being still further increased, there would be less occasion for solicitude on this subject. But such is not the fact. Business is not in a healthy condition. It is speculative, feverish, uncertain. Every day that contraction is deferred increases the difficulty of preventing a financial collapse. Prices and credits will not remain as they are. The tide will either recede or advance, and it will not recede without the controlling power of Congress.

NATIONAL CREDIT.

At the close of a great war, which has been waged on both sides with a vigor and energy and with an expenditure of money without a precedent in the modern times, the people of the United States are encumbered with a debt which requires the immediate and candid consideration of their representatives.

Since the commencement of the special session of 1861, the most important subject which has demanded and received the attention of Congress has been that of providing the means to prosecute the war, and the success of the Government in raising money is evidence of the wisdom of the measures devised for this purpose, as well as of the loyalty of the people and the resources of the country. No nation, within the same period, ever borrowed so largely, or with so much facility. It is now to be demonstrated that a Republican Government cannot only carry on a war on the most gigantic scale and create a debt of immense magnitude, but can place this debt on a satisfactory basis, and meet every engagement with fidelity. The same wisdom which has been exhibited by the National councils in providing the means for preserving the national unity will not be wanting in devising measures for establishing the national credit.

NECESSITY OF MAINTAINING THE PUBLIC FAITH.

The maintenance of public faith is a national necessity. Nations do not and cannot safely accumulate money to be used at a future day, and exigencies are constantly occurring in which the richest and most powerful are under the necessity of borrowing. The millennial days when nations shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks, and learn war no more are yet, according to all existing indications, far in the future. Weak and defaulting nations may maintain a nominally independent existence, but it will be by reason of the jealousies rather than the forbearance of stronger Powers. No nation is absolutely safe which is not in a condition to defend itself, nor can it be in this condition, no matter how strong in other respects, without a well established financial credit. Nations cannot, therefore, afford to be unfaithful to their pecuniary obligations. Credit to them, as to individuals, is money and money is the war power of the age. But for the unfaltering confidence of the people of the loyal States in the good faith of the Government, the late rebellion would have been a success, and this great nation, so rapidly becoming again united and harmonious would have been broken into weak and belligerent fragments.

But the public faith of the United States has higher considerations than these for its support. It rests not only upon the interests of the people but upon their integrity and virtue. The debt of the United States has been created by the people in their successful struggle for undivided and indivisible nationality. It is not a debt imposed upon unwilling subjects by despotic authority, but one incurred by the people themselves for the preservation of their government—by the preservation of which those who have been leagued together for its overthrow are to be as really benefitted as those who have been battling for its maintenance. As it is a debt voluntarily incurred for the common good, its burdens will be cheerfully borne by the people, who will not permit them to be permanent.

WHAT THE DEBT REPRESENTS.

The public debt of the United States represents a portion of the accumulated wealth of the country. While it is a debt of the Nation, it becomes the capital of the citizen. The means of the merchant, manufacturer and farmer, and also those of the workman and the soldier, have been liberally invested in it; and it is an interesting fact—a practical evidence of the great resources of the country—that so large an amount of their wealth could be loaned by the people to the government without embarrassing industrial pursuits. Notwithstanding more than $2,000,000 of the means of the people of the United States have been thus loaned, no branch of useful industry has suffered by the investment. It is undoubtedly true that if the wealth which has been invested in United States securities could have been employed in agriculture, in commerce, in mining and manufactures, in opening farms and the better improvement of those already under cultivation, in building railroads and ships, in working the mines and in increasing the variety and amount of our manufactures, the nation would have been far in advance of what it now is in material prosperity. But it is also true that, notwithstanding the large investments by the people of the United States in the securities of their Government, notwithstanding also, more than 2,000,000 of men, in the Northern States alone, were for longer or shorter periods, in the military service and at least 700,000 for a good part of the time the war continued were constantly under arms, and notwithstanding the immense waste of life consequent upon operations so extensive and battles so sanguinary as characterized this memorable struggle, the larger part of the country has still, since 1840, progressed both in wealth and population. The loyal States have advanced in material prosperity in spite of the great drain that has been made upon them; and now that the war is closed, the Union is no longer in peril, and the men that made the armies on both sides so effective and formidable are to be again employed in profitable pursuits, the onward march of the country—even if a temporary reaction, as the result of the war and the redundancy of the currency, shall be experienced—will be decided and resistless.

THE DEBT A NATIONAL BURDEN—IT SHOULD BE PAID AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE.

The debt is large, but if kept at home, as it is desirable it should be, with a judicious system of taxation, it need not be oppressive. It is, however, a debt. While it is capital to the holders of the securities it is still a national debt, and an encumbrance upon the national estate. Neither its advantages nor its burdens are or can be shared or borne equally by the people. Its influences are anti republican. It adds to the power of the Executive by increasing Federal patronage. It must be distasteful to the people because it fills the country with informers and tax gatherers. It is dangerous to the public virtue because it involves the collection and disbursement of vast sums of money, and renders rigid national economy almost impracticable. It is, in a word, a national burden and the work of removing it—no matter how desirable it may be for individual investment—should not be long postponed.

As all true men desire to leave to their heirs an unencumbered estate, so should it be the ambition of the people of the United States to relieve their descendants of this national mortgage. We need not be anxious that future generations shall share the burden with us. Wars are not at an end and posterity will have enough to do to take care of the debts of their own creation.

THE WAY TO PAY.

Various plans have been suggested for the payment of the debt, but the Secretary sees no way of accomplishing it but by an increase of the national income beyond the national expenditures. In a matter of so grave importance as this experiments are out of place. The plain beaten path of experience is the only safe one to travel.

The first step to be taken is to institute measures for funding the obligations that are soon to mature. The next is to provide for raising in a manner the least odious and oppressive to tax-payers, the revenues necessary to pay the interest on the debt, and a certain definite amount annually for the reduction of the principal. The Secretary respectfully suggests that on this subject the expression of Congress should be decided and emphatic. It is of the greatest importance in the management of a matter of such surpassing interest that the right start should be made. Nothing but revenue will sustain the national credit, and nothing less than a fixed policy for the reduction of the public debt will be likely to prevent its increase.

WHAT CONGRESS SHOULD DO.

After careful reflection the Secretary concludes that [illegible] Congress [illegible] for raising the necessary revenue would be [illegible] to the people and better calculated to strengthen the national credit than one which should provide that $200,000,000 commencing with the next fiscal year shall be annually applied to the payment of the interest and principal of the national debt. The estimates for the next fiscal year indicate that a very much larger amount could be so applied without an increase of taxes.

Before concluding his remarks upon the national debt the Secretary would suggest that the credit of the 5-20 bonds issued under the acts of February 25, 1862, and June 30, 1864 would be improved in Europe and consequently their market value advanced at home if Congress should declare that the principal as well as the interest of these bonds is to be paid in coin.

The policy of the Government in regard to the funded debt is well understood in the United States but the absence in these acts that the principal of the bonds issued under them should be paid in coin while such a provision is contained in the act under which the 10-40s were issued has created some apprehension in Europe that the 5-20 bonds might be called in at the expiration of five years and paid in United States notes.

Although it is not desirable that our securities should be held out of the United States, it is desirable that they should be of good credit in foreign markets on account of the influence which these must exert upon our own. It is therefore, important that all misapprehension on these points should be removed by an explicit declaration of Congress that these bonds are to be paid in coin.

The Secretary opposes strenuously the taxation of Government securities by States.

MINE SILVER.—During the past week quite an excitement has prevailed in town over the discovery of some new silver leads in this vicinity. The street corners are continually occupied with anxious and interested groups, the burden of whose conversation is the last strike in silver and the ears of the uninitiated strangers passing along our thoroughfares are continually assailed with the cabalistic words "dips," "spurs," "angles," "blinds," "chimneys," "extensions," "originals," etc., etc., ad libitum. But talk is not all; we were shown, a few days ago, some specimens of rock said to have been taken from one of the ledges mentioned that would create quite an excitement in far famed Washoe, much as they are accustomed in that region to developments of that kind. The specimens were obtained from the croppings of a ledge which is located somewhere between this and Willow Springs. We are not much of an adept in mineralogy, but we should need some good authority to convince us that the rock mentioned does not contain some of the black chloride of silver. The ledge from which they were taken is said to crop three to four feet above the ground, and is about twelve feet thick at the point where it was discovered. The locators are displaying commendable energy in the matter, and are already preparing to go down on the ledge. By next week we shall no doubt be able to learn something further in the premises.—Jacksonville Reporter.

THE STANDARD
AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!
AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS
MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress of 1863, composed of all the first class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We employ, in the construction of our tables a variety of machines specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch.

The eminent French Billiard Player, M. Berger, has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK, 2d August 1861

"On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that, after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is so superior that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty. For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration.

MEDICAL WONDER.
The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom, or an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor.— The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
